

HardisonInk.com

Cement floor added to pavilion; Christmas card creation continues

This aerial view shows the new concrete floor as well as the footers around the structure.

Story, Photos and Video By Jeff M. Hardison © Dec. 1, 2016 at 8:57 p.m.

CHIEFLAND – The newest improvement to the C. Doyle McCall Pavilion at First United Methodist Church of Chiefland is a cement floor.

A fly-by near the pavilion on Thursday (Dec. 1) showed the change to the structure that the church uses for various purposes.

Other activity at the church on Thursday was the creation of more Christmas cards to place next to U.S. Alt. 27. Volunteers from the congregation improve existing cards and create new ones for donors.

Open Hearts. Open Minds. Open Doors. That's the United Methodist slogan, and the Chiefland church welcomes everyone to worship. The church continues reaching out to the community with many missions.

(from left) Junie Burr, Coral Colton and Nancy Dean paint a Christmas card Thursday (Dec. 1). This card is from The Children's Table.

HardisonInk.com

This view shows several cards are already placed.

HardisonInk.com is among the card sponsors again this year.