

HardisonInk.com

---

Birds enjoy summer sky in Cedar Key on July 15

A roseate spoonbill checks out a possible food location in the water next to Cedar Key.

Photos By Jeff M. Hardison © July 17, 2018 at 9:38 p.m.

A variety of birds enjoyed the sky and waters in the Cedar Key area on Sunday (July 15).

<https://youtu.be/gJAYxuzxAYs>

In this video, pelicans are seen paddling against a slight current as some other birds make noises from atop a weather-detecting station on the Big Dock at Cedar Key on Sunday (July 15). A visit to the island can be very relaxing.

Roseate spoonbills eat in the background (upper right) as this tall bird stands in shallow water.

A white ibis strolls next to a shore.

A great egret flies.

HardisonInk.com

---

A great egret prepares to land

HardisonInk.com

---

Spoonbills dine.

A bird dries feathers while standing on an oyster bed at low tide.

HardisonInk.com

---

A gull flies in the blue.

A sail catfish flips its tail before being returned to the Gulf of Mexico from the big fishing dock on Cedar Key.

HardisonInk.com

---

Pelicans look for fish.

HardisonInk.com

---

A small sailboat becomes a golf cart.

Steamer's Clam Bar & Grill on Dock Street is a great place to eat and drink.