Magic Abounds At Levy County Public Libraries

Rebecca Rodgers, 18, models a bracelet and bookmark that are like those created by children during the Levy County Library System's Summer Youth Program this week.

In this other photo, she is starting to perform a magic trick. She was helping her mother Levy County Public Library System Youth Services-IT Manager Jenny Rodgers. Also active at the Bronson Public Library on Tuesday morning (July 17) was Levy County Library System Youth Services Assistant Jennifer Becker. The list of the whole summer's programs at all five libraries in Levy County can be viewed by clicking HERE. There are two more weeks of programs. Next week is Mini Angels Rescue Petting Zoo, and the final week is Lego Obstacle Course. During the program this week, which is in A.F. Knotts Public Library (Yankeetown) on Thursday, July 19, and at the Luther Callaway Public Library (Chiefland) on Friday, July 20, children saw magic tricks performed for 30 to 40 minutes. This program is free for all ages. The theme this summer is 'Libraries Rock!' One of the Summer Break Spots each Monday through Friday is at the public libraries in Levy County. As for Tuesday's fun in the Bronson Public Library, each child was provided with a lunch. The lunch on Tuesday at Bronson Public Library was a turkey and cheese sandwich, a bag of chips, fresh vegetables, fresh fruit and a choice of chocolate or regular milk.

Each child was given the opportunity to create their own bracelet, which they took home with them. Each child was given the opportunity to build their bookmark, too, which like the bracelet was modeled by Rebecca Rodgers in the photo. Rebecca Rodgers is going to New York City in September to model at Fashion Week, where she will be showing The Wow Wear Collection by Michael Galanes.
