

HardisonInk.com

Tie-tying activity helps students

All of the students and adults pause for a group picture.

Story and Photos By Natalie Couey
Published Aug. 21, 2018
at 4:38 p.m.

WILLISTON -- “You can have whatever you want... if you dress for it.”

School Board Member
Brad Etheridge shows
how to tie a tie.

HardisonInk.com

Coach Jim Smith teaches how to tie a tie.

School Board Member Chris Cowart demonstrates how to tie a tie.

HardisonInk.com

Principal Josh Slep teaches how to tie a tie.

That's right! Learning to dress for success and developing a strong work ethic will help turn life goals and dreams into your very own reality.

The Williston Middle High School Agribusiness Academy has begun that quest.

Students began exploring professionalism in their dress and daily habits by learning to tie neckties recently with assistance from School Board members, Chris Cowart and Brad Etheridge, as well as school administrators Principal Joshua Slep and Coach Jim Smith.

The Agribusiness Academy is a group of 46 eighth grade students enrolled in two high school courses: Agri-science Foundations 1 and Digital Information Technology.

The program was designed to introduce students to career options in both the agricultural industry and the business world. Instructors for this program are Natalie Couey (Agri-science) and Tanya Taylor (Business Technology).