Winner accepts certificate

Debra Appling smiles as she holds the certificate next to the front door of BubbaQue's in Chiefland on Sunday (Nov. 11, Veterans Day). That restaurant opened for its day of service at 11 a.m. and this photo was taken before that time.

In this video, both Goldy and Inky are being called. Goldy responded more quickly and she made the pick.

She was the winner from the many people who provided several entries in the contest. Appling accepted the certificate Sunday morning (Nov. 11 - Veterans Day) in front of the entrance to the BubbaQue's in Chiefland.

The winner was extremely happy to learn that she won. Due to a family healthcare emergency, she was unable to answer the call for her win until today (Sunday, Nov. 11). This certificate award served as a bright spot for her day.

In this video, both Goldy the cat Hardison and Inky the cat Hardison are being called to choose a winner. Goldy responded more quickly and she made the pick.

It was thanks to that magnificent effort by Goldy the cat Hardison, senior mascot of HardisonInk.com, that a winner has been selected for the most recent contest. (As seen in the video).

After Goldy completed her mission, Inky the cat said "Murp" which is a mix of a meow while she is purring. Inky the cat Hardison also left her claw marks on the certificate, but not to the point that a new one had to be printed.

As promised the winner was announced yesterday (Saturday, Dec. 10) on HardisonInk.com.

This contest resulted thanks to BubbaQue's and HardisonInk.com.

The next contest starts Dec. 1 and will result in the awarding of two tickets to see the play A Charlie Brown Christmas to be performed by the Suwannee Valley Players.
