

HardisonInk.com

---

Levy County Emergency Management seeks hailstorm damage reports

Hail on the road in Trenton shows a potential road hazard, especially for drivers unfamiliar with driving on ice.

Photo By Matt Weldon, director of Levy County Parks and Levy County Mosquito Control

Story By Levy County Emergency Management
Assistant Director David Peaton
Published March 27 at 9:29 a.m.

BRONSON -- A hailstorm moved through Gilchrist County, Alachua County and parts of Levy County early this morning (Wednesday, March 27).

HardisonInk.com

Graphic Provided by Levy County Emergency Management, from the National Weather Service's site

No significant reports of damage have been reported to the Levy County Emergency Management office or to the Levy County Sheriff's Office, but the staff members of the Levy County Emergency Management are seeing pictures of a lot of hail-covered areas, including a picture from the City of Trenton sent to Levy County Emergency Management by Levy County Parks Director Matt Weldon

Any Levy County resident who has experienced any significant damages, is asked to please let Levy County Emergency Management know, so that the staff can send a damage report to the National Weather Service office.

To report storm damage in Levy County, click HERE.

The Weather Bug (at upper right) shows sunny skies forecast for Chiefland through today (Wednesday, March 27). Click there to see weather for any Zip Code.