

HardisonInk.com

Time And Space

These two scenes both looking west from different parts of the Tri-County Area of Levy County, Dixie County and Gilchrist County on Monday evening (Aug. 5) show the same sky from two different perspectives about 15 minutes and some number of miles apart. These relatively stark photos are from the viewpoint of an inland motorist at these points in time, and can be considered in contrast with some of the scenes that may be perceived as more romantic from coastal communities in the Tri-County Area at those very moments. Nonetheless, this blue-collar version of sundown reflects that – It’s all good. Monday’s sundown had arrived, wrapping up the first workday for individuals who toil on Mondays. And for those who work into the darkness, it provides a benchmark during a Monday that may be different from the daylight workers’ perspectives.

Photos By Jeff M. Hardison © Aug. 6, 2019 at 10:19 a.m.